Note:

1. No accurate counting of Chinese characters is available. There are over 54,678 character entries in the Xinhua Chinese Dictionary published in 1990 and as many as more than 47,035 are found in the Kangxi Dictionary compiled in the Qing dynasty. Fortunately, however, the majority of them have become obsolete.
2. Studies show that a vocabulary of 2,833 frequently used Chinese characters will enable one to read books and periodicals of general subjects. Unfamiliar characters that may appear in those publications are very small in number and can be tacked with a high-school or college level dictionary.
